A Message for October 2023

A Month of Value

From the Archangelic Realm of Michael this is Michael and We come to you as you are moving into new parameters in your life and opening up to new aspects of your life as you transition from your month of September into your month of October. Your month of September was a continuation of a transition period, moving into a greater depth of self, a greater depth of knowing the self and releasing old aspects of the self as well as old habits, patterns, rituals and behaviors. You are now opening up to the fruition of self out into the world as you move into your month of October. It is a month of new beginnings as well as continuing ending old aspects in your life. There are various endings in your life. Old relationships are ending, including the old relationship you are having with your self. Opening up to a new love of self and a new value of self.

Many are moving into the month of October and beginning to understand in the depth and breadth of their beingness and in their heart space the value of themselves in the world and in relationships. Understanding the value as well of their talents, gifts and abilities as they move out into the world giving their talents, gifts and abilities.

In many ways your month of October is a month of value. What do you value in your life? What relationships do you value in your life where there is an equal balance of giving and receiving? Your month of October is also about giving and receiving love. Many are now opening up to the grandness and greatness of their heart space, their soul space and beginning to receive love from outside of themselves. Receiving love in relationships. Receiving love where their talents and gifts are concerned when other praise them. And as you receive this love you move into a state of fulfilment in life as opposed to looking outside of yourself for that praise and for your value.

Many now are moving within. And thus as We said to you in your month of September, moving into a multi-dimensional beingness of who they are, not a singular self. Many are now realizing that they are a multitude of personalities within them. Multitudes of individuated souls within themselves in the human form and condition. You are multi-versatile. Many are realizing the versatility of themselves where they are not only this or that but they are many things that have transpired in many lifetimes moving into this lifetime in the human form.

Your month of October is a month of fulfilment, a month of opening your heart space to receive love and beginning to move out into the world without the mask in place or aspects of the mask. Realizing that you no longer need to prove who you are in the world you can just be who you are.

Your month of October is a renaissance of self. Seeing the endings of the old relationships that are no longer needed based upon the new sense of self and a new sense of value of self. Many now are moving from the outer to the inner. We have said this many times before on your journey on the pathway in life through your personal process. Yet now as you move into your month of October what is coming to the fore is a greater sense of who you are, a great sense of the value of who you are that emanates from the inner aspect of yourself. You are no longer looking outside of you for validation and gratification. We have said this many times as well but you are moving now to a deeper level of that where you are now being it. You are now being who you are. You are now realizing the full beingness of who you are. As you move into your month of October it is time to harvest that. Harvest the beingness of who you are. Move into the gratefulness of who you are.

Look at the relationships you are having outside of yourself and see what relationships champion the beingness of who you are, champion your highest good. Many relationships are ending as you are ending the old relationship you have had with yourself. And as we said to you in your month of September, the models are beginning to disintegrate. What you have viewed the world to be, what you have viewed the relationships you are supposed to have and what your life should or could be based upon the old models this is beginning to disintegrate within you. As are the memories of the old habits, patterns rituals and behaviors. Many are looking at how did I ever perpetrate that behavior? This is because you have moved to a new state of being, a higher resonance of self. Where you have purged the old memory, the energy attached to the old memories from your physical beingness through the personal process. Through honoring and valuing the wounded child. Through the nurturing of self. Now moving into the fruition of the adult state where you can differentiate between the wounds of the child and the adult in the here and now.

You are now moving into the fruition of the new relationship with self. A new relationship with self that resonates and vibrates within your heart space. Now moving into a new aspect of your soul plan. This is what We meant when We said to you that your month of August and your first two weeks of September would be a transition period. Many have realized that as you moved through your month of September how you eased slowly out of the old habits, patterns, rituals and behaviors. And the memories of the old habits, patterns, rituals and behaviors have disintegrated. The old models of what life should be or could be or who you should be or what relationships should be based upon those old models are breaking up and disintegrating in many ways.

Now as you move into your month of October it is a month of Fruition, the fruition of having what you say you want. Having what is on those lists we had asked you to make. Having everything in your life that raises your resonance and vibration.

What has transpired in your life in your month of August and September is much of the old that no longer supports the new you has left, has departed. Many in your life have left and departed based upon the new you. The new you of who you are. The new you standing in your greatness and grandness of valuing yourself.

We ask you as you move into your month of October to see where you are valuing who you are. Valuing your talents, gifts and abilities. And as you value who you are and your talents, gifts and abilities you can begin to look at where there is a balance of giving and receiving in your relationships. A balance of giving and receiving in your life. It is not about measuring your relationships. It is simply seeing where there is a balance of giving and receiving in your life. As you be who you are and give that to the world is there a balance of receiving? Where are you open in your heart space to receive?

Many have moved to a place of understanding not in their mental body the concepts of it but being it. Being giving and being receiving. I am receiving and thus feeling a fulfillment within me. What are the feelings that are transpiring as you receive love? Many now are realizing the old habits, patterns and rituals of keeping love at arms length. But now they know they are worthy through the value of themselves that they are loved for who they are.

As you move into the month of October look at relationships past, present and future see what resonates for you and what doesn't resonate for you. Look at relationships that have ended, that have come to a close. Look at those relationships, not scrutinizing them but look at the relationship and see what it has given you and what you have given it. Be with this. The relationships that are ending are so in the soul plan of the other and yours as well. Move into the feelings of that relationship. Ask yourself, did that relationship raise my resonance and vibration, did it support my highest good, and see where there was a balance of giving and receiving. It is about relationships past, present and future. If you look at the relationships of the past and present they will predicate the relationships you will be having in the future.

As old relationships end, no matter how they end, see where they served you, where you served it, where you served an other and know that the relationship was perfect as it was. The relationships you are having now are perfect as they are. The memories and doing this is allowing you to look at these relationships for they will predicate the relationships you will have in the future.
