A Message for August 2026

A Period of Cleansing and Clearing

From the Archangelic Realm of Michael this is Michael and We come to you as you are now moving into new aspects of your life. What is transpiring now for many is there are different aspects of your life that are coming to the fore. Certain aspects of your life that you are being asked to involve yourself in. In many ways what is transpiring for many as you move out of your month of July into your month of August is there are certain aspects of your life that are surfacing now possibly with relationships that are being triggered by relationships that you have repressed and suppressed to a certain extent. And now there are aspects of your life that are surfacing. Old aspects, old memories that are surfacing that you now can take a look at. As you move out of your month of July into your month of August it begins a cleaning and clearing period of your life that will carry yourself through your month of August. As you move into your first part of August and then move out of that clearing in the second half of your month of August.

What is transpiring now as you move out of your month of July is you are taking stock in aspects of your life that is surfacing and aspects of yourself that is surfacing that in some ways are being triggered by certain relationships in your life for you now to observe and take look at. Not so much diving deep into it in your vernacular, but simply observing. What is transpiring within me that is surfacing that I need and make a choice to look at so I can become more aware and conscious of myself? Thus, another aspect of living the soul self, the soul aspect of yourself as opposed to looking at it in the linear aspect. I can look at that relationship and see it for what it is and look at them for who they are and should I have that relationship? This is all fine and well. Asking yourself does this relationship resonate for me or doesn't that relationship resonate for me? But what you are looking at now quite possibly are relationships where you are asking those questions. Does this relationship resonate for me or doesn't this relationship resonate for me? And you are looking at it from an observational place within yourself because you are not quite sure. But what is transpiring is that relationship is triggering and activating aspects of yourself where it is time to look at that and raising those points and that energy within yourself as if to say, can I take a look at that? There is some part of that relationship that might resonate for you and some part that doesn't resonate for you. You now are quite possibly piecing it together because you are now looking at it from the soul perspective.

If in fact there is a relationship or two or three that may be activating aspects or parts of you inside of you as you are quite possibly looking into the mirror, you can now look at that from a soul perspective as opposed to a linear third dimensional perspective. And ask yourself, what is surfacing inside of me? What is coming up inside of me? What aspects of me quite possibly it is time to look at or observe, not need to process it to a certain extent. By observing it you are choosing, I am living life from the soul perspective merging into the human perspective. As opposed to looking at the wonderful and most glorious soul, quite possibly judging them, blaming and shaming them or whatever you project onto them, you can now come from the soul perspective inside of you and ask, what is transpiring within me that has to do with me, not so much from that wonderful and glorious soul. Then possibly thank that wonderful and most glorious soul for appearing on the pathway. Then move within to see what is possibly being activated within the depth and breadth of your heart space that you may move through and that relationship organically and naturally will transform to what it is supposed to be on the soul path.

What is transpiring as you move through the end of your month of August is now a cleansing and clearing period. As you come to the end of your month of July into the beginning of your month of August you come to a cleansing and clearing portion of this period of time, a growth period. As We said to you when We came to you for your month of July, you are moving through a growth period. As you move through this growth period it is now to see what is transpiring in your life that is being triggering or activated inside of you that is a cleansing and cleaning that you can clear out as you continue this growth period that is an ascension period.

What you will do as you move into your month of August through the first half of August by cleansing and clearing, you are moving through an ascension process and moving to a higher level of resonance and vibration as you move through to the midpoint of your month of August into the end of August as you are moving into and navigating the second half of your year of 2026.

In many ways what We are alluding you to as you move through a cleansing and clearing process, you may be triggered and activated inside of yourself not so much of getting rid of anything but simply observing it so you can either integrate it or not. Then the relationships outside of yourself that quite possibly are triggering and activating aspects of you will simply organically and naturally will take on the shape and form of what the relationship is or isn't.

This is all about moving into your life in the soul perspective as opposed to linearly looking at what is transpiring within you and projecting quite possibly onto another. Simply asking, what is transpiring within me that I may be able to clean and cleanse within myself as I move through the month of August to the midpoint then move to the ascension aspects of your month of August that will bring you to a higher level of resonance and vibration.

In many ways is it simply about following the pathway as you move into your month of August and seeing where that pathway takes you. As We said to you many times before, this cleansing and clearing process in many ways is part of closing old doors to the old behind you. Not so much as We said to you when We came to you the last time, in the third dimensional realm but in the aspects of the soul self. Closing the old doors behind you because what you are doing is minimalizing the aspects of your life. It is about minimizing aspects of your life energetically so you can navigate the human aspects of life as you move from your second half of your month of August to the end of your month of August into your month of September. You are moving through a clearing and cleansing process designed in this period of time to move into minimizing aspects of your life so you can streamline your life and move on the pathway as the doorways are opening energetically so you can flow into that as you minimize the old aspects of your life.

As you are now moving into the homogenization of moving in the soul perspective along with moving with the human perspective you will now be able to minimize that to streamline it to a more ascension aspect of your life as you move toward the end of your month of July into the beginning of your month of August and then in the second half of your month of August moving in a more streamlined fashion that you will find organically and naturally that doors to aspects of the old will close organically and naturally for you.

What We are alluding to is, you may not need to close the door to the old relationships because what you will see in those old relationships is exactly why those old relationships appear on your pathway in the human form from a soul perspective. As you move through the end of your month of July into your month of August and you look at what is being triggered or activated inside of you based upon old relationships or relationships you are currently having and move into that and see that to make it more visible to you. As you do this at the beginning of your month of August then at the second half of your month of August you will see why those relationships were important in your life. Then organically and naturally make the choice if those relationships continue in your life or not. This will happen organically and naturally where there will be no drama involved in the relationship. They will simply be what they are or not.

This is what you expect as you move through the end of your month of July into your month of August. In this clearing and cleansing process you will be able to gain and greater sense of clarity as to where you are on this pathway in the soul form and the human form.
